Queensland Racing Crime Squad arrest

A man has been charged following a protracted investigation into alleged betting offences over a 10-year period by the Queensland Racing Crime Squad.

Detectives attached to the Queensland Racing Crime Squad working in conjunction with the Queensland Racing Integrity Commission and Integrity Regulatory Unit Stewards concluded the protracted investigation today in relation to a harness racing participant.

A 61-year-old man from The Gap has been charged and released on bail and will appear in the Brisbane Magistrates Court on 13 November 2017 in relation to offences against the 'Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act 2006'.

The offences are alleged to have been committed over a 10-year period.
